DirecTV's streaming offerings got a whole lot more comprehensive this past week thanks to the addition of 22 channels to its DirecTV Everywhere service.

The 22 new channels join an existing lineup of streamable channels, according to the company, and includes popular networks such as BET, Cartoon Network, CNN, Comedy Central, MTV, the East Coast Nickelodeon feed, TBS, TNT, and TV Land. With these new additions, DirecTV Everywhere now includes a grand total of 90 channels.

With DirecTV Everywhere, you can stream select network programming to your computer, phone, or tablet, often with no additional charge... assuming you're already a DirecTV subscriber, anyway. The company offers free apps for Android and iOS, but again, you'll need to be a DirecTV subscriber to actually take advantage of them.

Why this matters: We're not going to complain about having more streaming TV options—it's another step in the right direction, and
